SUPPORT MILITARY SPOUSES

FAYETTEVILLE, NC – The countless daily sacrifices that military spouses and their families make are often underappreciated or overlooked.

One unique non-profit organization is doing all it can to rectify that oversight. On Friday, May 6th, at 09:30am, Support Military Spouses will be at the AIT Festival Hall to deliver Care Packages for Military Spouses.

Volunteers throughout North and South Carolina assembled the Appreciation Care Packages destined for the military spouses in Charleston.

The assembly-line effort is part of the Appreciation Care Packages program organized by Support Military Spouses.

The program, whose main focus is on military spouses, is the only kind in the nation.

Support Military Spouses Co-Founders Dr. Steven and Mrs. Diane Rumley said, “This program is a way to recognize and appreciate the multitude of challenges the spouses face.”

Each Appreciation Care Package for a military spouse contains a wide array of gifts, including jewelry and a New Testament.

“But just as importantly,” said the Rumleys, “each package carries a personal handwritten card. Those heartfelt messages, penned by thousands of Carolina school children and patriotic adults, have made an emotional impact on the military families in the past years.”

Now in its eighth year, Support Military Spouses is expanding an already strong relationship with military families.

The organization serves NC military bases Fort Bragg, Camp Lejeune, Seymour Johnson AFB, SC military bases Joint Base Charleston, Fort Jackson, Shaw AFB, and GA military base Moody AFB. The organization has implemented two programs to help military spouses, active duty service members, and veterans improve their financial knowledge and work skills including hosting military spouse job fairs.

Money Management Workshops aim to help attendees build a strong credit score, provide tips for credit card usage and teach proper budgeting through workshops.

Job Skills Training provides useful skills on resume writing, proper usage of social media and job research. Support Military Spouses hosts Military Community Job Fairs connecting qualified military spouses, active duty service members, and veterans with military friendly employers.

Both programs are offered near the military bases. In addition, program information is available via webinars, emails, and social media.
